

Dear XXXX

Commissioning a building?

You may be surprised to learn that not every building supplier is committed to – or even capable of – delivering your project on time and on budget

You're probably the type of person that expects your building project to be delivered on the agreed project date. You're probably the type of person that even expects your building supplier to stick to the agreed contract sum. Reasonable expectations, right?

Wrong.

Last year, the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors (RICS) conducted research revealing exactly how often building projects are delivered to the agreed contract date. They also revealed how many were delivered to the agreed contract sum.

Take a look at the enclosed information. We're not sure if you're the gambling type. But, the odds of getting your building project completed on time and on budget aren't particularly good.

When it comes to a building project, who wants to gamble?

At Portakabin, we don't think that your building project is the kind of thing you want to be gambling with. Which is why we are the only modular building manufacturer to fully commit to delivering your building on time and on budget.

In fact, we've made it a promise. And it's a promise we back up. Take a look at the enclosed leaflet to find out how. You'll also find out how well we compare to traditional building suppliers when it comes to meeting commitments.
